Christmas Tree

On Wednesday, Dec. 21st, the joint Christmas Tree of the Village took place Conrad's Hall, and it proved to be quite a successful venture. The Hall was packed to its utmost capacity, upwards of 400 persons and children being present. A miscellaneous entertainment was given by the school children. Mr. A.
W. Gordon was Chairman. The program consisted of songs, recitations, sketches and dialogues; and concluded with the Trial Scene from "The Merchant of Venice", which was very well rendered by the elder scholars who took part. The teachers are to be complimented on the success attained considering the short time available for training, which was mostly done after school hours.

The event of the evening, however, was the arrival of Santa Claus who was eagerly looked for after the program was finished, on his arrival amid great applause, he at once commenced to hand out the numerous presents from the Tree, from which every child received something, and each received a bag of candies, nuts, etc., on leaving.

Lloyd George Tells Of His Part In The Irish Settlement

London.—Contrasted strikingly with Britain's royal pomp and splendour played in the House of Lords, was the scene in the House of Commons a few hours later when, without ceremony, but with evident consciousness of powers and influence, the members heard the Prime Minister render an account of his stewardship and the Government's part in the Irish settlement.

For an hour and three-quarters Mr. Lloyd George spoke to crowded benches and jammed galleries. The only touch of color in the ancient legislative chamber was the brilliant red-coated uniform of Col. Sir Samuel Hoare, who moved the resolution to the speech from the throne.

It was not an oration like that of October 31, when the Premier, having been challenged, presented to the country the alternative of war or negotiation with Ireland and won the day by a division overwhelmingly favoring the Government's policy; his role today was one simply narrating the problems faced by the delegations with a description of the way they were handled.

Early in his address Mr. Lloyd George silenced those inclined to interrupt him. "When an Ulster member interrogated him on 'allegiance' Mr. Lloyd George having said that the status of Ireland was that of a free state, with allegiance to the King, he turned and faced the Ulsterite and declared emphatically: "Yes, allegiance to the King and wearing allegiance to the King." He then asked the member to refrain from interruptions, as his task of exposition was difficult and one which he disliked. The Prime Minister was deeply impressive as he came near the end, when in slow tones and solemn manner, he drew a picture of the British Imperial War Cabinet at which a vacant chair was waiting for Ireland and looked to the future when Britain's fears would be Ireland's anxieties, and Britain's victory, Ireland's joy.

Suggests Direct Wireless Service

Plan For Direct Communication Between Britain and Australia Being Investigated

Melbourne.—The Federal Parliament has appointed a committee with authority to investigate and approve a plan for the establishment of direct wireless communication between Great Britain and Australia. Interest in the undertaking has been stimulated by the facility with which Australian stations received President Harding's round-the-world wireless message and by the fact that the press associations received without delay, messages sent from Carnarvon, Wales.

London.—Except when atmospheric conditions are unusually bad, wireless news messages are now being received daily from Australia by way of the post office station at Leamside, the first station of the Imperial wireless chain. The postmaster-general points out that the experts who are advising the Government in regard to the construction of additional stations of the Imperial chain express the opinion that greater reliability and cheapness would be ensured by the use of intermediate stations about 2,500 miles apart which would be able to maintain communication when direct service is impossible.

Investigate Condition in West Indies
Tingston, Jamaica.—A mission, headed by Major Wood, has been sent here by the British Government to investigate economic and political conditions in the West Indies. The coming of the British mission has created considerable interest in view of the frequent discussions about possible sale of the West Indies to the U.S.

Foch Sails For Home
New York.—Marshall Foch has sailed on the French liner Paris for home. Another passenger was Rene Viviani, former French premier who is returning home from the Washington arms conference.

J. J. White, Publisher of The Outlook, Outlook, Sask.

Chinaman's Sentence Commuted
Ottawa.—The Cabinet Council commuted the death sentence passed on Chow Tong, a Chinaman convicted of murdering five of his countrymen, on board the steamer Mackinac while the vessel was lying in the St. Lawrence River at Quebec on October 15.

Melbourne.—The commonwealth arbitration court refused the request of the industrial unions for a general reduction of the working week in Australia to 44 hours.

Move To Form A Western Freight Classification Body

Benares Welcomed Prince

In Spite of Ghandi's Orders For a Boycott

Benares, India.—When the Prince of Wales arrived here a "haria" had been proclaimed but it was practically ignored by the natives who thronged the streets. The programme which had been arranged in honor of the Prince was carried out without a hitch and he left for Nepal to hunt big game.

London.—The magnificent reception accorded the Prince of Wales at Benares following the disappointing display at Allahabad, says a Reuter's despatch, illustrates the indifference of the Indian unrest. The warm reception at Benares is regarded as of special significance inasmuch as Benares is a holy city. The Hindus turned out in throngs to greet the Prince in disobedience of indirect strike orders from the Hindu leader Ghandi, whom the extremist element hold up as Mahatma (Saint).

After formal reception by the Maharajah, the Prince drove in a glittering silver state coach to the Hindu University, where he received an honorary degree of doctor of literature.

Calgary.—Definite steps toward the formation of a Western Canadian Freight Classification Committee were taken at a conference between W. B. Langlan, general freight manager of the C.P.R., Major W. M. Kirkpatrick, assistant freight agent for western lines of the C.P.R. and members of the classification committee of the Calgary Board of Trade. Mr. Langlan who is on his way to British Columbia from Montreal, outlined what had been accomplished by the classification committee of Eastern Canada toward revising the present classification code. More than half the articles have been classified by the eastern committee so far as the minimum rates and ratings are concerned. The minimum rates in the new classification will be the same as at present, Mr. Langlan declared, except that trade headings will be more restricted.

The suggestion which Mr. Langlan placed before the conference was that the same principles should be followed in the western provinces as in the east, that of appointing a special committee consisting of three of the chairmen of the Western Canadian Freight Association. The minutes of the eastern committee would be forwarded to the western committee and the recommendations of agreement which have been signed by business men affected by the classification would be called in and in that way straighten out the difficulty.

King George Gives Speech From Throne

Special Session of Parliament to Consider Irish Question

London.—The special session of Parliament, called to consider the Irish peace settlement opened by King George. In his speech from the throne he said: "It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you, the strife of centuries may be ended."

The text of the King's speech was as follows: "My lords and members of the House of Commons. I have summoned you to meet at this unusual time in order that the articles of agreement which have been signed by my ministers and the Irish delegation can at once be submitted for your approval. No other business will be brought before you at the present session."

"It was with heartfelt joy that I learned of the agreement reached after negotiations protracted many months and affecting not only the welfare of Ireland but of the British and Irish races throughout the world. It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you the strife of centuries may be ended and that Ireland as a free partner in the commonwealth of nations forming the British Empire will secure fulfillment of her national ideals."

China Proposes to Buy Shantung Railway

Japanese Delegates Have Cabled Offer To Tokio

Washington.—The counter proposals of China for the purchase from Japan of the Kiao Chow Peinan Pa Railroad in Shantung province, has been cabled to Tokio by the Japanese ambassadors conference delegation which has been carrying on direct conversation with the Chinese delegates in an effort to settle the Shantung problem outside the conference.

The Japanese are said to have considered it necessary to receive instructions from home on this matter which is deemed the most important in the negotiations. China is understood to be ready to furnish bonds as security for the payment, but the Japanese are said to feel that some security further than bonds should be given. The consultation with Tokio may delay definite action on the railroad subject.

By making your purchases from your home, you are contributing direct to the prosperity of the community in which you live.

In humble cot and stately hall
With laughter and with song,
The children hail the Christmas tide
For which they've waited long.
To them Old Time had leaden wings
They wished him well away.
And asked that he but leave to them
Their own—their one Great Day.

In their sweet songs and joyous play
The older folks renew
Dear visions of their early days
When life was sweet and true,
And once again their voices raise
In Greetings ever new
A merry Christmas to you all,
A bright new year to you.

British Miners Working Overtime

Greatest Rush of Business Since Pre-War Days

London.—Scottish coal mine owners have a rush of orders at present that has not been equaled since pre-war days. Steamers are loading coal day and night and the miners are working overtime. The situation in South Wales is similar to that at the Scottish mines.

In consequence of the rush of business, coal prices are stiffening considerably. The increase is largely due to continental and other foreign orders for coal.

Switzerland Bans German Aircraft

Military Machines Not Allowed Over Swiss Territory

Berne.—German military aircraft is prohibited from flying over Swiss territory in a notice just issued by the Federal Aerial Office. The ban also applies to civil aircraft registered in Switzerland, but included in the class of airplanes prohibited in Germany, provided their papers do not contain a special certificate from the German Minister of Transportation, showing they were consigned before January 10, 1920.

A new air service completing the connection between London and the Swiss winter resorts has recently been opened by a French concern. The new air line extends from Paris to Lausanne. It is at present necessary for passengers from London to remain over night in Paris, but in the near future continuous service will be provided.

France Willing To Wait For Payments

Recognizes Germany Must Be Helped To Adjust Finances

Paris.—France is willing to forgo temporary cash reparations payments from Germany, a high official in the French foreign office told the Associated Press.

The official said there was general recognition by the press and in French officialdom that Germany must be aided and possibly compelled to set her financial house in order if future indemnities payments were to be forthcoming.

Wonderful Skill Of Ancient Craftsmen Has Been Lost To World

One of the many lessons taught by museums is that clever craftsmanship is not a modern monopoly. Much of the work done thousands of years ago is unapproachable today, and of the processes which were comparatively common then are now practically unknown.

There is in the Wellcome Historical Medical Museum, London, an exhibit which baffles the most skilled of modern embalmers. It consists of a number of human heads from Ecuador rescued by some undiscovered process to about the size of a small orange. Notwithstanding the great shrinkage, each is perfect, and is rendered additionally interesting by the sealing of the lips, which are sewn up, so that the "spirit" of the dead should not escape and do harm to the owner!

The museum in the Royal College of Surgeons contains another remarkable specimen of ancient workmanship. It is part of the wrapping from a mummy more than six thousand years old.

So precious is this material that for a time its precise nature was a mystery; but ultimately it was found to be linen of exquisite fineness. Compared with it, the finest that Belfast can produce is positively coarse. Equally wonderful is the Portland Vase in the British Museum. Though it is two thousand years old no man living can reproduce it. The art it represents has long been dead. It is made, this vase, of two layers of glass, white on top and blue below; and the exquisite design is shown in white. This was effected by carving away all the glass where it was not wanted—a feat of well-nigh incredible difficulty owing to the brittleness of the material. No other example of such workmanship is known to exist.

Just as inimitable is another British Museum treasure—a bronze Mercury, found in 1782 at Paranythia, in Epirus. It is as remarkable for wealth of detail as for fineness of craftsmanship. The modelling of the veins is distinct and prominent, every lock of hair seems as if it could be blown about by the wind, and the lines of the lips, brows, eyelids, etc., are perfectly finished. Yet the surface is so regular that even with a magnifying glass no toolmark can be detected.

Graphic representations of the Pyramids, as well as fragments of those great sepulchral monuments, further illustrate the wonderful skill of ancient craftsmen. One of the problems of ages is how the ancient Egyptians moved the great blocks embodied in the Pyramids. The cubic contents of the greatest were nearly 7,000,000 tons, and would build a city of 22,000 houses of ordinary size. Basement stones in the Pyramid, moreover, are 30 feet long, 5 feet high, and 5 feet wide. The method by which the components, and particularly those huge blocks, were transported and put into place has never been discovered.

But there are other mysteries no less bewildering connected with the Pyramids. For instance, the joining is a perpetual marvel to experts, since it is equal to that in the finest modern cabinet work. It is amazing even to those who know that 100,000 men were employed for twenty years on the Great Pyramid alone.

Little less curious are much more commonplace objects, such as Roman bronze bowls found in Britain. The puzzle here is this: How did the ancients reduce metals from their ores? At that period there was no other fuel than wood, which was converted by slow burning into charcoal; and though in comparatively modern times iron was reduced by charcoal in Kent and Sussex, scientists do not know by what method the Romans produced the enormous heat required to smelt iron and copper. Apparently their process has been lost forever.

Bernhardt's Tomb

Close to her island home, Bell-Ile-en-Mer, in the Bay of Discy, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has bought from the French Government for $125 a tiny rocky islet, where she intends to make her burial place. It has long been her habit when travelling to take with her a coffin, and she intends to give personal attention to the planning of her tomb.

Gassing the Gopher

Chlorine Gas Is Now Suggested By Dominion Experts

Many methods have been employed with varying success for the destruction of gophers. School children have been encouraged to destroy it by the offering of prizes, and much good work has been done in this way. Poisons of various kinds have been used, and at first have generally been found effective. Some farmers in Saskatchewan have found poisoned water effective, but how long it will remain so has yet to be proved. The use of chlorine gas is now suggested by experts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. One-tenth of a pound liberates being injected into each gopher burrow has proved effective. A comparatively new cyanide manufactured in electric furnaces at Niagara Falls, Ont., has been found of great promise in this connection. This cyanide, it should be mentioned, is the most inert cyanide, or the time-salt of prussic acid, and therefore, must be regarded as a dangerous poison and requires to be taken great care of both in handling and keeping. There is danger in storing strychnine-poisoned grain in sacks, and in using it, farmers too frequently scatter it on the surface about the entrance instead of putting it into the burrows, thus endangering both wild and domestic animal life. Calcium cyanide has the advantage of being as effective at one season as at another, while poisoned grain is most destructive for a short time only, namely, in the spring before the grasses start.

A One Man Ferry

Chinese Have Novel Way of Crossing Streams

In the north of China where the most dangerous are often narrow, rapids and there are no ferries, the natives solve the problem of crossing the swift streams in a novel manner. Every house in the district is equipped with the skin of a cow or a horse, sewed and cemented air-tight to make a huge bladder, and beside this buoyant raft there always leans a paddle. When any one of the family has business across stream he takes the light bladder, throws it over his shoulder, picks up the paddle and goes down to the river. Into the shallows he wades, places the bladder under him, sits down on it and paddles away. It seems very simple, but it is fraught with perils for the novice. But these northern Chinese are masters of the art and paddle across even swift torrents with a speed and ease that is amazing.

By making your purchases from the money merchant you are contributing direct to the prosperity of the community in which you live.

Errors On German Stamp

Smiths at Work Are Shown in Impossible Positions

Philatelists will rush for the new German 68-pennig stamp for the lynx-eyed have discovered more mistakes on it than were possibly ever before crowded into the restricted space of a postage stamp.

Three smiths are shown hard at work. Two of them are holding their hammers wrongly, unless one of them is that rarely a left-handed smith. A smith always tucks up his sleeves with the roll inside. Not so two of the smiths on the stamp. They are all in impossible positions, and a vast piece of iron is held on the anvil in quite the wrong way. While the three men hammer away at it, a small apprentice holds it in place! Such a philatelic comedy of errors is certain to be withdrawn soon.

Stone Trees On Island Of Sardinia

Petrified Trunks Have Been Found Among Mountains

Many thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands, of years ago there flourished in the island of Sardinia, which lies in the warm Mediterranean of the olive-clad Italian coast, forests of huge trees as large as those in California today.

Amid the geological changes which altered the earth's surface these forests disappeared, and no one until quite recently had any idea that they had left any traces behind. Now among the mountains petrified trunks have been found, and the discovery of these has led to the opening-up of whole forests turned to stone.

New Industry In France

Cotton and Wool Being Pulverized for Commercial Purposes

We scarcely think of cotton and wool as a powder, yet there are now half a dozen factories in France, pulverizing cotton and wool for commercial purposes.

Cotton in a finely-powdered form is largely used as a filtering material for substances, such as colloid, which can only be clarified with difficulty. It is used, also, in the manufacture of gramophone records, to render them less brittle, and has the further advantage of minimizing the vibration which unpleasant tones of gramophone music.

Many new ideas of wool and cotton in this remarkable form are being devised, and in the electrical industry it is invaluable. France has at present a monopoly of the process.

Unemployed Going to Farms

100 men, some of them with families, are being placed on farms by the government employment agencies. These men appear to realize government officials say, that $10 or $15 a month and "found" on farms is better than destitution and charity in the city.

Our Courteous Prince

People in India Impressed By His Gracious Manner

According to a Renter cable from Bikanir, the Prince of Wales achieved wonderful popularity there largely attributable, according to a court official, to his gracious courtesy. The natives of Bikanir invariably salute persons of high rank three successive times and Europeans commonly respond only once. The fact that the Prince never failed to return each salutation has made a profound impression on the people with whom apparent trifles count far more than is generally realized.

English In Moscow

Spoken There More Frequently Than Any Other Tongue

A visitor to the Soviet Government bureau in Moscow is likely to hear the English language spoken more frequently than any other tongue. Refugees from the old czarist regime who lived in England and America, deportees from the United States and others who willingly left English-speaking countries to take part in the great communist experiment, found English the best for general communication and so its use grew. The haven of the language of freedom may yet aid in breaking up the Russian cloud—Buffalo Express.

An Uncommon Habit

Appreciation Easy to Show If We Feel It

It is not a difficult thing to say with the lips, but saying it right down in the heart is another matter. Really appreciating what people do for us and telling them about it once in a while is not a common habit with as many of us as it might be.

As a rule, no persons do as much for us as our own folks do, and few get as little thanks and expressed appreciation for it. We think our mothers ought to be good to use sure; so should our sisters, and our wives, and our children, and their kindness and care, and self-sacrificing attention are taken for granted. But no service, never mind how small, ought to be taken for granted in that way that we fail to appreciate the goodness and love that prompts it.

Appreciation is the best, and in many cases the only, return we can give for the sympathy and help that come to us from those who are near to us, and that give to life its true joy and satisfaction. And appreciation is easy to show if we really feel it. And usually it is easy enough to feel it if we only take time to think about what other people are doing for us. Ingratitude is all the greater fault, because it is largely a result of self-centered thoughtlessness.

The reader of much contemporary American fiction could scarcely fail to get the idea that Canada is a country peopled almost exclusively by bearded, ignorant habitants, garbed the year round in skin suits, prospectors, bootleggers, dangerous adventurers and others of that ilk, who live in some mysterious "northland," where they do nothing but drink whiskey, play poker and engage in gun fights. Among these uncouth individuals is generally a beautiful girl—where she comes from God only knows! She is usually alone in this "northland"—excepting, perhaps, for a pet grizzly or maybe a faithful wolf! These beings, bewildered, whiskey-soaked ruffians fight to the death for possession of her. The general atmosphere is one of snow, snow everywhere—dead seas, northern lights, snow, cold, blizzards, frozen water. . . .

And then the Mounted Police "get" their men. But with this force "getting" does not mean shooting him; it means arresting him and bringing him to trial.

British Columbia has been termed a "sea of mountains," and there is no doubt that future transcontinental airplane passengers will be quite willing to confirm this description.

So Canada is subject to all climatic conditions excepting the tropical; it contains all sorts of people but the blacks. Between its coasts may be found cities, which, if smaller, are not less advanced and progressive than any on the continent. Within its borders may be found all gradations of society, from those possessing the advantages of the latest advances of civilization and science down to the most primitive frontier conditions.

It would be hard to indicate any particular sphere of activities as being typically "Canadian," but perhaps the truly Canadian spirit is best pictured in a picture of rural life, that great culture-bed in which lie the seeds of this young dominion's coming greatness; those human elements which will go on shaping the destinies of this virile new nation in the course which fate has marked out for her.

It is true that the wheat operator at Winnipeg and the dry goods merchant of Montreal or Toronto are little distinguishable from their counterparts in Chicago and New York; that the lumber barons of Ottawa are no different from the men who have made their millions in the woods of Michigan; that the wheat grower in Saskatchewan is not essentially different from the grain grower in Kansas or the Dakotas; that the ranchers in Alberta resemble closely the ranchers in Wyoming. On the other hand, the habits of these things as the people of the United States—D. M. La Bourdais in The Dearborn Independent.

Wanted Expert Opinion

A man walked into a grocer's shop and handed to the assistant a paper containing some white powder.

"I say," he asked, "what do you think that is? Just taste it and tell me your opinion."

The grocer sniffed it, then touched it with his tongue.

"Well, I should say that is soda."

"That's just what I say," was the triumphant reply. "But my wife said it is rat poison. You might try it again and make sure."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Desert Cactus is Useful

Many Things Are Made From Different Species of Plant.

The huge cactus which grows in abundance on desert soil is being turned to useful account today.

The woody part of the trunk supplies material for table-legs, chairs, canes and veneering. The prickly spikes are made into toothpicks, needles, and pins for mending leather. The pulp in the stem is cut into strips, and is stewed or fried for human food.

Cheese is made from the fruits of some cactus plants, and the red juice is used to color ice creams and jellies.

There are many different kinds of cactus, some growing to a height of sixty feet. Many of the different species bear fruit which is eaten raw or when dried, and one particular part of the plant is often eaten by natives owing to its peculiar power of allaying both hunger and thirst, and acting as well as a powerful stimulant.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, bad ventilated rooms. It is no stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To stand against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"Those Who Dance Must Pay The Fiddler"

There's a settlement in profit or loss, for nearly every indulgence.

Sometimes the pay day is long deferred, and in that case the settlement may bear compound interest.

Often a payment in ill health is required for the dance had with tea or coffee during earlier years. Sometimes the collection comes in sleeplessness, sometimes in headaches, sometimes in high blood pressure, or in nervous indigestion—sometimes in all these penalties.

Nerves won't always stand the whipping of tea and coffee's drug, caffeine.

If you've been dancing to tea or coffee's fiddling, why keep on till payment time comes? If you're beginning to pay, now, why not cancel the contract?

There's an easy and pleasant way to avoid tea and coffee's penalties, as thousands have found who have changed to Postum. It is a delight with any meal—rich, comforting and satisfying—and it never harms. Even the little children can have a breakfast cup of Postum, with no fear for what may happen to sensitive nerves.

Instead of paying penalties for your meal-time drink, let it pay benefits to you, by giving natural health a full chance—and begin the new arrangement today. Any grocer will sell you, or any good restaurant will serve you Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 30 minutes.

Baronet Deprived of Nationality

Sir Edgar Speyer Held Guilty of Giving Aid to King's Enemies

Sir Edgar Speyer has been deprived of his British nationality by a report of a special Statutory Committee, which was appointed recently to inquire into charges that he had been guilty of conduct incompatible with his oath of allegiance to King George V. and giving aid and comfort to the King's enemies. The evidence before the committee was taken in camera, but it is understood great stress was laid by the Attorney-General on testimony procured by a commission in the United States, showing Sir Edgar's relations with Dr. Karlmuich, and other Germans in the United States during the war. This decision automatically deprives Sir Edgar of his British Privy Councilship, but he retains his baronetcy until King George, by order-in-council, annuls it. He has the right to appeal to the Supreme Court on questions of law, if he elects to do so.

A Coat Dress In Black Broadcloth

By Marie Belmont

Black has held full sway for so many months that one would think its power must surely begin to wane. But this is by no means the case, as black things continue to come from Paris. To be sure, at present there are enough high shades to offset this sombre tone. By way of diversion, the vogue for black is finding new mediums of expression. This particular coat dress is broadcloth instead of Canton crepe, and drapes up at the hip as effectively as only broadcloth can. The self-covered buckle holds the fulness here, while black silk braid outlines the collar and slightly flared sleeves. A dainty vest in white or ecru complete the effect. The coat dress is sponsored by a number of designers this season and finds ready favor because of its smartness and practicality. It may be worn beneath a long or short coat, and is very good with a short fur coat.

WEDDING

HARNACK - WALROTH

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, December 21st, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Walroth, when their daughter Ella Margaret Augusta and Mr. Arthur Harnack were united in matrimony by Rev. MacDonald, of Airdrie.

At 12:30 the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father. She was assisted by her sister Beatrice. The bridegroom was assisted by the bride's brother Claude.

The bride was very prettily attired in a white parietal silk dress with crepe de chene sleeves and overskirt, and carried a beautiful bouquet of tulips and roses. The bride's sister wore a charming frock of white voile, with a bouquet of roses and tulips pinned on the front.

After the ceremony the bride and bridegroom were escorted to the dining room where dinner was enjoyed by all.

The parlor and dining room were decorated with blue and red crepe-paper and large red Christmas bells.

After partaking of the wedding dinner, music was rendered by the bride's sister Beatrice, also by a phonograph. A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

Amid showers of rice the happy couple left for their honeymoon trip on the evening train to Portland, Oregon, U. S. A.

The bride's travelling suit consisted of a brown dress and brown coat with hat to match.

After their honeymoon they will reside on the bridegroom's farm, south-east of Crossfield.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. G. Murdoch, C. Murdoch, W. Stauffer, Ed. Michel, A. Harnack, Mrs. A. Fraser, Ed. Smith and J. Tracy. The presents received were numerous and costly.

The kind wishes of many Crossfield friends are extended for their future happiness.
